

This is obviously more monopolizing of cities and smaller towns. Isn't it bad enough that everyone gets their news from CNN and--that's hopefully--because God save us for those who really think Fox has something good to tell us. Just look at that show with that raging fool Mc whatever hour, where all he does is badger his interviewees. He's raised the possibility of one teacher being assassinated by his students in at least one town that I remember hearing about. It's already a bad enough mess with the giants we have running the show...

Will we ever learn from the days of William Randolph Hearst and the Spanish American War???

Thank you kindly
Michael A. Bourbina Jr.